The Honorable Homer Ferguson
United States Senator
Washington, D. C.

Dear Homer:

There are a number of Russian veterans' organizations in our country with close contacts of other Russian veteran's organizations in Europe. The organizations in this country have made a number of offers to our government of assistance in fighting the Communist gang. Offers have been made both to the State Department, to General Marshall and to General Eisenhower. Nothing has come of it.

Of Russian officers and men, both of the Imperial Army and formerly of the Russian Red Army, there are about a million now available who are very anxious to fight the Russian Communists. All that these people need is the official blessing of our government and a modest amount of assistance.

I have come to know some of these people personally and can vouch for their reliability, sincerity and integrity.

If it is agreeable to you, why not have an arrangement made whereby a number of these gentlemen, together with myself, can meet with you in Washington, preferably some week-end, let us say, on Friday evening or Saturday. The information that would be made available to you would be most interesting and possibly startling. It could very easily suggest a liquidation to the Communist peril, with a minimum of American resources and possibly no loss of American lives at all.

I want you to believe me when I tell you that this is one of the most important situations that has ever developed; with conditions as they are and particularly in Russia, what these men have offered is a most natural and logical solution of the entire vexatious problem of Communist conspiracy and intrigue.

I shall be glad to hear from you as soon as possible as to the time and place of meeting.

Sincerely yours,

Larry S. Davidow
